

Marianne Faithfull, Strange One

I should have known
You were a strange one.
You should have said
That you don't like to love.
But you never told me no lies.
Don't have to apologise.
When everything's said and done,
I was the strange one.

I should have known
You were a strange one.
You should have said
I don't want to love.
But I never told you no lies.
I don't want to apologise,
When everything's said and done,

What can I do?
That boy's in love with you.

I should have seen it coming,
I should have known what to expect.
I could be off and running,
Looking for my respect.
You don't need to criticise,
You never did realise,
When everything's said and done,
You were a strange one.

You were a strange one.
You were a strange one.
You were a strange one.