

Marianne Faithfull, Wrong Road Again

I can't seem to learn not to love you,
You get to me every time.
You're someone I just can't say 'no' to,
And you're so good at changing my mind.

Here I go down that wrong road again,
Going back where I've already been.
Even though I know where it will end,
Here I go down that wrong road again.

Though I see the web that you're weaving,
You and your soft easy lies,
If I stop to think I'm believing,
And I'm falling for you one more time.

Here I go down that wrong road again,
Going back where I've already been,

Even though I know where it will end
Here I go down that wrong road again.

Here I go down that wrong road again,
Going back where I've already been.
Even though I know where it will end,
Here I go down that wrong road again.

Here I go down that wrong road again,
Going back where I've already been.
Even though I know where it will end,
Here I go down that wrong road again.

Here I go down that wrong road again,
Going back where I've already been.
Even though...
