

Mark Knopfler, Let It All Go

When it's pop goes the weasel let go of the easel
You don't want this rickety racket life
It's seat of the trousers
It's all sink or swim, son I'd kill to get crimson on this palette knife
And I'd steal in a minute
I'm up to here in it You here behaving as though I'm a saint Get a job with a pension Don't ever mention you once had a craving for the brushes and paint

So go, forget it, let it all go
let it all go
Go, forget it, let it all go
Go, forget it, let it all go
let it all go
Go, forget it, let it all go
Let it all go

A hack writer judges my swipes and my smudges he doesn't like pictures with blotches and blots
The drawing room tea set wants horses, sunsets - sweet nothings - the seaside with yachts Here's the end of the thirties no time for artistes over in Poland a right old to-do So go join the navy the air force or the army They'll all be enrolling young fellows like you

So go, forget it, let it all go
let it all go
Go, forget it, let it all go
Go, forget it, let it all go
let it all go
Go, forget it, let it all go
Let it all go

These are not my decisions flaming visions ringing expressions the clamouring voice It's volcanic desire the unquenchable fire
It isn't a question, you haven't a choice.
Anyway, now I'm old but if you won't be told if you've been created to answer the call all passion and lust is going to end in the dust but you'll hang on some government gallery wall

You must go, forget it let it all go, let it all go
Go, forget it
Let it all go
