

Mayday Parade, Your Song

You say that Gainesville's got no soul
Well that sounds like a good excuse for coming home
And all these Tallahassee skylines
They keep singing out a song
I know it's your song (your song)
They've been singing all night long
And this Galley Alley rooftop
Just keeps calling out your name
To come and stay
So stay

So stay
Stay and watch the stars came out and then the sun as they all fade away
I'll sing every song I know if it will make you stay
And then I'll say
That I missed you
And these words
They'll convince you

I poured through every song I wrote
Every line that I've cried, every note that was spilled with this pen
And every line in every song, they all seemed to come out wrong
Until your song
So let's sing it all night long
And this Tallahassee skyline hasn't changed
While the view from every rooftop says to stay

Stay and watch the stars came out and then the sun as they all fade away
I'll sing every song I know if it will make you stay
And then I'll say
That I missed you
And these words
They'll convince you

And I could call you baby doll all the time
And you'd whisper in my ears, you'd say, "I miss you boy"
So sing it over again, and over again, and over again
[x3]

Still you'd say
That I missed you
And these words
They'll convince you
And I'm hoping as I kiss you

And I could call you baby doll all the time
And you'd whisper in my ears, you'd say, "I miss you boy"
So sing it over again, and over again, and over again
