

McKinley, Stone

(McKinley)

My room gets as huge as heaven,
wide and deep as hell on the nights
I practice dying.

But I know I know

I know the pea the princess sleeps on
is the rock she won't walk away from,
knocking out a song on her spine.

But I think God's been watching.

He's going to roll away this stone of mine-
this stone of mine.

When you go, it's good to know the way.

They say you can wander 49 days.

Sit by my bed, read the book out loud,
keep me on the road that you started me down,

I know the pea the princess sleeps on
is the rock she won't walk away from,
knocking out a song on her spine.

But I think God's been watching.

He's going to roll away this stone of mind.
