

Meat Loaf, Man And A Woman

And the band began to play
Without a song they lose their way
A song of love and custom dreams
A song of yesterday

When they danced
When they danced
Her skirts were lifted high
She felt the music in his arms
The danger in his eyes

And a woman said, "No"
And a man said, But I love you so...
And a woman moved closer
And a man said, Take my love into your heart...
I must have you here by my side...

It happened all too fast
They came to love and they came to last
No-one remembers now who lied
True love is made of glass

And a woman said, "Change"
And a man said, As soon as I can...
And a woman said, "Open up"
And a man said, Your way is right...
You're my love I want to be holdin' you down...

In the evening of their lives
No regrets and clear blue skies
They met again in old New York
He tells he one sweet lie

When they danced
When they danced
And a man said, I love you so...
And a woman moved closer
And a man said, Take my love into your heart...
I must have you here by my side...