

Melaton, Flow

So what I'm given by time
And what I already call my own
Well to the earth refined
And never bear the load
Should a season change the night
On our sunday weather
Whether all sustains
Or turns around together

I need to take this chance, this chance
For all the reasons I can't hide
I need to take this chance, this chance
This seizures turned behind my eyes

If we seek tonight
For all that we could ever
Put aside for thought
Well it's close enough to never
And I read out loud
Loud enough to pass
Loud enough to reach out
Loud enough to last

I need to take this chance, this chance
For all the reasons I can't hide
I need to take this chance, this chance
For all that we might never know

So what I'm given by time
And what I already call my own
Well to the earth refined
And never bear the load

Should a season change the night
On our sunday weather
Whether all sustains
Or turns around together
Turns around together

I need to take this chance, this chance
For all the reasons I can't hide
I need to take this chance, this chance
For all that we might never know
Never know