Mew, Seething Rain Weeps For You (Uda Pruda)

Saying goodbye now Looking at friends A lump comes in my throat Hearing them all speak of you

It rains We have no umbrella brought With which the wind be fought The seething rain weeps for you

Speaking of better days There are so many things I want to say Should I re-live my life I'd run into you much sooner

Time has, it would seem Quickened its pace Leaving upon your face

A curly smile meant just for me

Speaking of better days I try to remember everything But as the years go by The dark moments lift Like rain clouds do

With destruction hands And low lit snow becoming Winter body aches

Speaking of better days I try to remember everything But as the years go by The dark moments lift Like rain clouds do From my window I watch the day go by
