Modern Day Zero, Take

(Go ahead and take all that you want from me!)

Now that I am addicted to your innocence It doesn't make sense; that we would throw this all away For once I'll agree to change my ways A lapse of common sense has left us past tense A sudden loss of breathe can we just get this over now Why don't you

Go ahead and take all that you want from me I won't use it anymore Go ahead and take all that you want from me I won't be here when you want more

Now you've turned the page and your back on me That's a book I'd rather read alone Why don't you

Go ahead and take all that you want from me I won't use it anymore Go ahead and take all that you want from me I won't be here when you want more

Don't abuse me; don't use me; you'll lose me And fall away It's too late; and too far away; it's too much To stay this way

Go ahead and take all that you want from me I won't use it anymore Go ahead and take all that you want from me I won't be here when you want more I won't be here when you want more

You keep on taking away
