

Moments In Grace, The Past

I watched as the dark fades to dawn and wish the past never happened Never happened
Never happened
Never happened

Walking home as the street lights are turning off and the print on the printers is hardly dry at all My blood shot eyes struggle to adjust to the sun
I always stop, but I know that I was wrong.
I wish the past never happened to you
happened to you
happened to you

Quietly turned away trembling.
I felt the weight of your words as they finally matched your lips.
I would give anything to take away this pain you live with.
I'd give you my soul, I'd give you this wish
I wish the past never happened to you
happened to you
happened to you

I wish this never happened
I wish the past never happened
happened to you
happened to you
happened to you