

Much The Same, For Those Left Behind

Is it so hard to understand?

You got left behind 'cause you wanted to do something with your life

You wanted something where mediocrity would not suffice

And i know the scene is bleeding, but I can't shake this feeling that's inside

I know this life's not for everyone but I'm still gonna try

We could give up now, let ourselves just drown tonight

Never voice my point of view and no more songs to sing for you, but this time, not out without a fight

Time keeps running out. I wake up each day and my pen and stare though my hazy eyes

At the blank sheet that's in front of me, but no one wants to hear me sing about

How the scene is bleeding, but I can't take this feeling that's inside

I know this life's not for everyone, but I'm still gonna try

For years it's been built up and I won't let them tear it down

We've bled for this scene and with our blood we'll wipe the stains clean

For all those that were left behind, don't think we'll ever say goodbye

You're always with us in our hearts and on our minds

We'll try to cure this disease that mocks everything

That you wanted it to be, it's everything to me
