

Murder By Death, Lets Take The Train

...carrying yourself like you're floating above the street walking you home three hundred paces late at night..
as the light adjusts- just for us..
and the streetlights flickering there's a path we've carved from east to west across this city-lights up the strings chasing past, pass our way.
as we pace home.