

Murder By Death, Space Queen

Well I was stranded, one million miles from earth
The safety device on my ship didn't work Floating around half dead with no future in the vacuum of space, getting weaker Along came a ship with the girl that was in it She looked like a cross between Bob Morenna(?) and Gidget
She said "Hey man, can I give you a ride?"
She opened her hatch, I went inside
The tears were rolling down my face

CHORUS:

Don't let me go, I can't take the fall
You might not know it, but you're my space queen
My rocket holds, one more soul and in my search for intelligent life nothing like you has ever crossed my eyes
She took me back to an earth that was horrid Anger, and greed, and heartache and squalor For protection we had each other We built a home, and we recovered And we loved one another with all of our hearts but we took it for granted and grew apart I yearned for the open expansive space and rebuilt my ship and went away and as I was leaving I felt like Luke Skywalker leaving his home planet of Tattoui

"Usa la force-a, Luke" [no idea how to spell these last 2 line, Starwars fanatics, please help]

CHORUS:

Don't let me go, I can't take the fall
You might not know it, but you're my space queen
My rocket holds, one more soul
and in my search for intelligent life nothing like you has ever crossed my eyes

(crossed my eyes)

(crossed my eyes)

As I was leaving the earth's atmosphere, something was holding me back was it fear?

Maybe, it was the gravity belt

That's when I learned what it was that I felt

A giant rubber band was attached to me tightly tied to my waist by the girl who had saved me to make sure I'd return one day but what she didn't realise is that the rubber band stretched so far that when it snapped me back to earth

I went through the earth's crust, through the mantle,

through the core and out the other side, breaking every bone in my body (aaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaah...)

Don't let me go, I can't take the fall

You might not know it, but you're my space queen

My rocket holds, one more soul

(Don't let me go) don't let me go now baby

(You might not know it) but you're my space queen

(My rocket holds) and you know, ahaaahaa ooohoooohoooo...

(Don't let me go) aaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaah...

(You might not know it)

(My rocket holds) one more soul

And in my search for intelligent life

nothing like you has a, has ever crossed my eyes
