Natalie Cole, Starting Over

And when I hold you in my arms I promise you You're gonna feel a love that's beautiful and new This time I'll love you even better Than I ever did before And you'll be in my heart forevermore We were just too young to know We fell in love and let it go So easy to say the words goodbye So hard to let the feelings die I know how much I need you now The time is turning back somehow As soon as our heart and souls unite I know for sure we'll get the feeling right And now we're starting over again It's not the easiest thing to do I'm feeling inside again Cuz every time I look at you I know were starting over again This time we'll love all the pain Welcome home my lover and friend We are starting over, over again If we never lived alone Then we might have never known All the time we spent apart All we did was break each other's heart And when I hold you in my arms I promise you You're gonna feel a love that's beautiful and new This time I'll love you even better Than I ever did before And you'll be in my heart forever And now we're starting over again It's not the easiest thing to do I'm feeling inside again Cuz everytime I look at you I know were starting over again This time we'll love all the pain away Welcome home my lover and friend We are starting over, over again This time we'll chase all the rain away Welcome home my lover and friend We are starting over, over again We are starting over, over again