

Negative, An Ornament

Don't say "I'm sorry" again
Doesn't give you the right
To be someone else
Would be pleased to love and share
But inside I'm locked
I can't even cry

Love only matters
When it comes to the end
Love only matters
Makes you rise again

I'm just an ornament
An ornament to your face
Not enough, but it feels right
That you keep me alive
When you hold me tight

Both ends are burning fast
Would you stand by me
When things are getting bad?
And the colors here will fade
Would you help me see
Real shades of grey?

Love only matters
When it comes to the end
Love only matters
Makes me rise again

I'm just an ornament
An ornament to your face
Not enough, but it feels right
That you keep me alive
When you hold me tight

I'm just an ornament
An ornament in your garden
Not enough, but it feels right
That you keep me alive
When you bring the rain, rain, rain

Read between
The lines
This is fragile
Only for you and I
All I want is
That you love me
As I am

Don't say "I'm sorry" again
Doesn't give you the right
To be someone else
Someone else
Someone else