

Neil Sedaka, One More Mountain To Climb

Hey Lord, won't trouble never end, tell me, are you still my friend.
I got such a heavy load, when will I reach that glory road.
One more mountain to climb,
one more river to cross,
I come such a long long way and still,
I got a long way to go.
Weary all of the time,
I've been tumbled and tossed,
there's always one more mountain to climb
and one more river to cross.
Hey Lord, I'm nothing but a man,
I try to do the best I can.
Sometimes the road is hard to see,
please, Lord, won't you walk along with me.
One more mountain to climb,
one more river to cross,
I come such a long long way and still,
I got a long way to go.
Weary all of the time,
I've been tumbled and tossed,
there's always one more mountain to climb
and one more river to cross.
One more mountain to climb,
one more river to cross,
I come such a long long way and still,
I got a long way to go.
Weary all of the time,
I've been tumbled and tossed,
there's always one more mountain to climb
and one more river to cross.
