

New Atlantic, Jupiter

You're flying through space
On these wasted nights
'I'll drop you off at Jupiter
And say goodbye
'I'll head off into outer-space
It will be out of context
And out of place the irony of no gravity is that It's starting to have a hold on me
This rocket ship is about to bust
I'm about to hit a comet of lust
Fall down
Hide away from regret
Fall down.
I've never seen a planet with an ego before
Don't waste your time
There's nothing left to explore in this atmosphere
It's hard to navigate
Because the path of its orbit has never been real
Straight while you're flying through space on these wasted nights
'I'll drop you off and Jupiter
'I'll say goodbye
'I'll head off into outer-space
It will be my misfortune
And your mistake my misfortune
And your mistake fall down
Hide away from regret
Fall down until you see the sun fall down
Life's no good with regret
Just forgive and forget and face the day.
You're flying through space on these wasted nights
'I'll drop you Jupiter
And say goodbye
I won't look back as I hit light-speed because everything we had is nothing I need.
Fall down hide away from regret
Fall down until you see the sun fall down
Life's no good with regret just forgive
And forget
And face the day.
