

New Atlantic, Layered Up

Layer up, it's cold outside
But my heart is warm enough to keep you dry
Watch your things wrap up tight
The wind is stronger now, when leaves are coming down

Don't let go, hold me close
Let the rain fall through your eyes and drown tonight
Hold on tight, fall in love with me again don't close your eyes

I'll follow you through the trees
Dangerous storms, earthquakes, disguised in a love song
I'll sneak out every night
Prepare a place where we can hide, when time's on our side

Don't hold on weather
To change you, to make you bleed
Soon enough you'll learn to reach her
