Nightingale, Recovery Opus

I don't know why I feel this way Whatever happened to yesterday And the voices left without a grace Maybe I was going insane? I guess it was all an illusion Based upon my living I am raised upon confusion

I must leave this broken home For my heart is in dispair I have to go back to where I was last night When there was evil in the air

I can't describe the feeling I'm like a creature that is drawn to the flame It has already changed my life I will never be the same But first I will close the door to my mind And sort out what is there behind It's such a mess here in my head So I will do what the voices said (Sleep)