

Nina Gordon, New Year's Eve

normally i'd be french twisting my hair and selecting the right earrings to wear oh it's a special evening for most and normally i'd be proposing a toast but not this year
because i'm here
the party's all around me
you're there
indifference has found me oh i know it's not in fashion wearing heartache on your sleeve but i'm here
and your there
so who cares what i wear on new years eve?
normally i'd be knee-deep in champagne i'd kick my heels up until neighbors complain oh it's a glamorous evening for most and normally i'd be upstaging the host
but not this year
because i'm here
i know i should have dressed up but i just cant make believe now i'm here
your there
so who cares what i wear on new years eve?
if your flirting with some other girl tonight i'm not flirting with some other guy i keep thinking how last year at midnight you blew me away with the resolution that you made
i'm here
tonight before the ball drops i'll grab my coat and leave
i'm here
so who cares what i wear on new years eve?
i'm here
so who cares what i wear on new years eve?
