

Nitzer Ebb, Family Man

family man

he's a family man, his wife laments
never broken any of the ten commandments
either pushing rock
selling for cock
or rubbing out, rubbing out, rubbing them out seeing ass fly by

in a drive by
fly by night
he'll give you a fright
taking out your cash
he'll stuff it in his stash
leaving by the back door
settling up your old score

he's a family man, his wife laments
never broken any of the ten commandments
either pushing rock
selling for cock
or rubbing out, rubbing out, rubbing them out

he knows it all so well from a spell in the cell now can't you tell
this is hell
but just think of the cash and the friends you can smash if they're crossing your path you'll get the last laugh as you're driving away yes it's been a good day to die as you try to get by

buy to get high
and he'll lend
so that you spend your life will depend on your money made friend your friend 'til the end he knows no wrong from right best keep out of his sight

he's a family man, his wife laments
never broken any of the ten commandments
either pushing rock
selling for cock
or rubbing out, rubbing out, rubbing them out

yeah, and you know his girls love him too even when you're dropping your goo and you think well, if the judge only knew but then, do you really think that he hasn't been there too with his leather strap clap trap and a dolly bird sitting on his lap her fingertips trips across him like on a road map leading down to his old chap

family man
family man
family man
family man

family man
family man

he's a family man, his wife laments
never broken any of the ten commandments
either pushing rock
selling for cock
or rubbing out, rubbing out, rubbing them out

seeing ass fly by
in a drive by
fly by night
he'll give you a fright
taking out your cash
he'll stuff it in his stash
leaving by the back door
settling up your old score

family man
family man
family man
family man
he's a family man