

Nomy, If you can hear this

Have you ever felt the rain when you're standing all alone
When its cold and pooring down
When it makes you feel at home It's like you're standing on a road with a silence within you hating what is left still holds on too
You can stay and wait for nothing Still the rain will fall on you
The bleeding is over, you said but its not What you're thinking of is all what they forgot What if you told her now you're alone
If you can here this were you are then come on home
Have you ever felt the rain
When your standing without time
On a road that never ends waiting for a sign
I believe the wind is you I believe that you are near and the memmories flashes by I've got no fear
Memmories haunting me Stopping me from wanna be Everything is got to die
I wonder
Tell me how I should live I have nothing more to give Gotta go now I know were you are
And now you're standing next beside me and the rain is finally gone The bleeding is over, they say and it is What I'm thinking of is all that once missed What if I told you, now we're alone now I see you I could finally call it home
