Norma Jean, Like Swimming Circles

I don't care what you said I won't sink in the flood But I listen to every noise That you make and make sense of what you say And I take note to every sound

We're not the same again Don't you dare insinuate me

You don't care what you create You can't swim in this flood And you'll swallow with every wave That comes by and take, take what you need You'll still swallow with every tide

We're not the same again Don't you dare insinuate me To hell with that!
