

Nyoy Volante, Because Of Your Love(The Prodigal Son's Lullaby)

how can i see your face and receive your loving grace when i am here shamed in sin hurting you deep within yet everytime i run and flee you take me home forgiving me with the skies i feel your touch no other can be this much you are there as i hide with your arms open wide

for you alone have the greatest love the world has ever known a love that never ceases to embrace a weary heart and give a brand new start provides light where the sun has never shown now i can understand that i am here because of your love so i take your gentle hand only to sin again and yet you turn then stubbornly

you take me home, forgiving me how can love as great as this even want to exist oh God of all that's good and true please believe i love you too though i walk through desert's doors i will fear nothing more that i am here because...

you are there as i hide
with your arms open wide
though i walk through desert's doors
i will fear nothing more nothing more

as you take me by the hand that i am here because of your love