

Obi Best, Who Loves You Now

Every word I say is true
I'll say anything to be close to you
I recall a letter sent of whole-hearted-beating
Fleeting sentiment

Who loves you now?

You're still here on the second verse
On the third we break up baby
How it hurts
The fourth verse brings someone new
My dirty heart admits to touching you

Who loves you now?

And I know there will be times to run around
Like a bird with its head cut off
And I know there will be times to run around
And dream of once again breathing

Who loves you now?

Love is blind, and hallucinates too
Blooming baby faces circle around you
Organ fades, carousel stops
Made up babies get off

We were full of it - we almost tied the knot
Now I'm just a peaceful afterthought
Now's the time for new love to be ushered in
But I'll dream of us while I'm kissing the ghost of him

Who loves you now?

And I know there will be times to run around
Like a bird with its head cut off
And I know there will be times to run around
Like you're almost thinking
And I know there will be times to flap around
Like a fish who's air we're drinking
And I know there will be times to run around
And dream of once again breathing
