

On The Last Day, A Welcome Haunting

Steal the breath from me. It's yours to take. I give it freely. Shake me from my sleep. To see the thi

Speak to me in memories. To comfort me. A welcomed haunting. This is my apology. This fallacy. A welcomed haunting silence ringing through the city. Sorrow floods the streets.

It occurs to me. I haven't seen. Where you've been sleeping. Crushed so deep beneath reality. Just over six feet. What could I have done. Is all I'll think. To drive you both home. Not to gravestones. Take you somewhere safe.

Sirens (I am) Blaring (Failing) Echo through the trees (rest in peace)
Silence (Silent) Waiting (Funeral) (Procession)
Two are missing heartbeats (Through the streets)

Lift the coffin weight. I feel ashamed. There's something missing
The black hearse waits below. Down by the road. To drive you both home
To your graves your final resting place