

One Fine Day, Damn Right

do you get it now, now you make a bow to shattered hopes and dreams of a better day but you won't see me crawl and never following your way can you feel the heat from your burning seat don't you wanna stand up and fight for more don't retreat stick up for what you live for and I still believe damn right damn right I'm still believing and call for hope today

it's never black and white and always worth a fight that battle for your own prosperity and some starry night you will know you're happy will you ever dare to leave behind despair you wanna change but don't wanna make the first step you're just too scared caught in your mental trap
