Pat Benatar, Only You

I lost faith in myself, in everyone and everything around me I thought I'd disappear, maybe you'd be better off without me You showed me I was wrong, everybody needs someone And love is not about perfection You made no promises Life is hard enough you said, without you Only You, Only You You're all that matters Only You, Only You, Only You Only You give me strength When my world is shattered Only You, Only You, Only You I've walked this road some many times before You'd think I'd know the way But like the fool that I am, it always ends the same You said that everyone deserves a little happiness No one should have to be alone Me, I'd be satisfied with just a little tenderness, With you Only You, Only You You're all that matters Only You, Only You, Only You Only You break the chain When my world is shattered Only You, Only You, Only You Only You, Only You You're all that matters Only You, Only You, Only You Only You give me strength When my world is shattered Only You, Only You, Only You