Penumbra, Cursed Destiny

Two worlds are within me They live together just as one Giving the feeling of existing And the means of ruling

I despise them both Refusing to belong to something As a dying slave I have been reduced to nothing

Why do I still believe in this love? This pathetic silly love Selfish, coward and pitiless This I've been

I believe in this love Stronger by your treachery Coward and pitiless This is who I used to be

I feel human Can't this love defeat you You rule this world And you pretend to set your people free

Leave me Release me Let me Blossom for eternity

I'll show you the way To free your soul From these idols

Shall I reveal the truth Or leave them in ignorance These puppets want to be like you And decide on their destiny I despise them both Refusing to belong to something As a dying slave I have been reduced to nothing

Your empire is but a shroud By pure appearance So deadly in the end So morbid So devastating

I believe in this love Stronger by your treachery Coward and pitiless This is who I used to be