

Phenom, Unbound

She was at the cross roads of her life
It was time to make a choice
She could have turned and walked away
but she chose to stay .. she said

"I don't want to be another ordinary one, mediocre
I'd rather be so much more ..."

Waves crashing by and light all around
So much to tell, the stories abound
Riding on hope, though fate will decide
Goes on the searching soul ... UNBOUND

It could have been anybody else
Happened on any other day
She could have turned and walked away
But she chose to stay ... she said

"I don't want to be another ordinary one, mediocre
I'd rather be so much more ..."

Ceaseless struggle going on
As she carries on her quest for the truth
A drooping gait, a tired gallop
Goes on the searching soul ... UNBOUND