

Pillar, Starin Back

There seems to be something going on inside of you
Maybe what you need is just another point of view
But not from me, thats not for me to do
So, step back, relax, take a second, look inside of you
And you can see an image of yourself you never saw before despite all the trauma youve felt
If one way or another, we all are bright stars
Its just a simple way to find out who we really are
Why do we let it out of control? Has all this taken a toll?
I dont know if we can take anymore
Weve got to stop and take a look in the mirror before
Step back, take a look inside yourself
From the outside, you can see someone else staring back at you
Its your reflection
Step back, take a look inside yourself
From the outside, you can see someone else staring back at you
Its your reflection
Why do you feel so empty every time youve had enough?
Well, maybe you dont realize with what youve been filling up
Its plain to see that eventually you will see
The Jekyll and Hyde game in your mind is just a simile
Why do we let it out of control? Has all this taken a toll?
I dont know if we can take anymore
Weve got to stop and take a look in the mirror before
Step back, take a look inside yourself
From the outside, you can see someone else staring back at you
Its your reflection
Step back, take a look inside yourself
From the outside, you can see someone else staring back at you
Its your reflection
Before your perception has started to get a little numb
And your perfection isnt helping anyone
Your reflection is the only way for you to see
For your protection, you need to see reality