

Porter Wagoner, Bones

Bones you've took me to places I wish that I'd never been Bones you've carried me down winding roads of love that I thought had no end
But bones this time you've led me right straight to true love's door
So bones let me tell you don't take me away anymore bones
Bones I've felt you tremble and I've felt love make you bend
And bones you've been broken to pieces at times but you always seemed to mend
Bones we've been a long way together and not once have you let me down
Why bones you've probably walked me over
The place where we'll sleep in the ground bones bones bones
