Primordial, The Coffin Ships

Young hearts born with grief Shall pay the penalty of truth A season of stolen youth Shall teach old hearts to break

It feels like I've been here before Here to where the animals lay down to die So we stood alone on a distant store Our broken spirits in rags and tatters

Nerve and muscle, heart and brains
Lost to Ireland, lost in vain
Pause and you can almost hear
The sounds echo down through the ages
The creak of the burial cart
Here in humiliation and sorrow
Not mixed with indignation
One is driven to exclaim
Oh god, that bread should be so dear
And human flesh so cheap[*]

Young hearts are born with such grief We have paid the penalty of truth A season of our stolen youth Shall teach our hearts to break