I can't believe what I'm feeling now After all that time I was far down Their broken lives should show the way far past anything they say I can't resist anything you give Every single part of the way you live I don't know if this is so right but I will never forget this night I'll make this forever and take you here with me I'll make this forever It's what I need This is the end of what's always been All the hate they bring doesn't mean a thing When you're in this place standing here with me Everything I need I can almost see Why am I so alone When there's so many around Everyone now is not the same as I ślowly drift away I'll make this forever and take you here with me I'll make this forever It's what I need
