

Profugus Mortis, Arm Yourself

So arm yourself
When it's time to fight for
what you think is right
Your wits won't dodge all the hits
The strength you possess won't always stand the test
Everyone has fallen to their knees.
So now while you can put on the full armor and take your stand
So when your enemy is near you won't be overcome with fear.

Their attacks come swift so take your hits
But you'll stand * once more
Don't let adversity and pain bring you down
At all times be ready, be brave
Friend or foe no one knows until it's too late
Then you feel the knife is sliding deeper in your back

This world is a battle ground
And their legions come to tear what we built down
With lies, they'll try, and some will fall
But all should heed this call (repeat)

When it's time to fight for
what you think is right
Your wits won't dodge all the hits
The strength you possess won't always stand the test
Everyone has fallen to their knees.

For those who destroy, you will fall you'll fall you'll fall you'll fall one day
For all the time that you preyed on the weak and the poor
It will add another chain

So arm yourself for all time
with truth and wisdom by your side
Honor those who honor you in return

So arm yourself for all time
with truth and wisdom by your side
Honor those who honor you in return.
