

Project 86, A Shadow On Me

These petals
This blackened rose
In a soil all my own
Shrouding your hallowed ground
Like seeds who'll never sow
Like forgery and larceny
And my ill-gained revelry
I recite these scripted lines
While embers of a different time...
Go drifting by

When every word you ever said came true
All I missed in all of this was you

Can you see a shadow on me
Calling me to find (You're the only home)
In me (You're the only home I know)
A trace of you in all this tragedy

These pieces
The shattered shards
Dancing in the moonlight
Glimmering and glistening
Preparing me for the night
I never learned to walk the surface on my own
So lately this ocean floor's
Been feeling more like home

When every word you ever said came true
All I missed in all of this was you

Can you see a shadow on me
Calling me to find (You're the only home)
In me (You're the only home I know)
A trace of you in all this tragedy

So take me in these fleeting moments of solitued in You Remove this sordid fascination with shadow and remove
This shattered self of preservation commitment to undo
All that You forgave and give and all You promised to... and all You promised to...

Can! (You're the only home)
You see! (You're the only home I know)
A shadow on me
Calling me to find (You're the only home)
In me (You're the only home I know)
A trace of you in all this tragedy

Can you see the shadow lifting,
Drifting home again?
