Pulp, Dogs Are Everywhere

Dogs are everywhere almost everywhere that I go

They have too much and then

They have too much again and then more

They leave their scent behind them everywhere they go

Oh dogs are everywhere that I go

Oh dogs are everywhere almost everywhere that I go

They have too much and then they have too much again and then more

They leave their scent behind them everywhere they go

Oh dogs are everywhere yes dogs are everywhere yes dogs are everywhere that I go

They always wag their tails at all the pretty girls and older women

They find their own way in and they rip up everything that I believe in

Sometimes I have to wonder about the dog in me

Oh dogs are everywhere yes dogs are everywhere,

yes dogs are everywhere that I go

They get down on all fours when you walk through the door

They whine and beg around your feet like a dog for something sweet

They sink their teeth in you, they're tearing you in two

Remains are buried out of doors

Oh I want some more

I want some more

Sometimes I have to wonder about the dog in me

Oh dogs are everywhere yes dogs are everywhere

oh dogs are everywhere that I go

Sometimes I have to wonder about the dog in me

Oh dogs are everywhere yes dogs are everywhere

Yes dogs are everywhere that I go that I go, that I go, that I go

Everywhere, everywhere, everywhere

Dogs are everywhere.
