

Punchline, Why Is He Right?

Why is he right
when I say goodnight
to you when you're never there?

I'm awake, I'm awake, I'm awake now,
I've got to get back to sleep now somehow
If I lay on my side with my pillow maybe you'll fly in my window

Why is he right
when I say goodnight
to you when you're never there?

If you're not too busy tonight,
Could you come visit me and my closed eyes?
Please don't leave before the warmth's realized,
that it would be a big mistake,
if I haven't already made it

It's getting late,
I hesitate to even try now.
It's worth it even if I'm tired tomorrow.
Before the sun comes up today,
I'm sure I'll be awake

Why is he right
when I say goodnight
to you when you're never there?

If you're not too busy tonight,
Could you come visit me and my closed eyes?
Please don't leave before the warmth's realized,
or I smile and awake cause that would be a big mistake
if I haven't already made it.

Do you think you can take it?

There's nothing between our eyes,
this could be real.
It's a surprise.
If I wake up next to you,
good luck,
I hope you're there.
