Pushover, Tell Me Why

You're running faster than you did before
Why are you running for the world now
It will never be the same, now there's only you to blame
Now you're just look for the door
Tell me why
You decide to just disappear
Why
See the thing that you would do, do the things that have been done to you
Nothing changes, you're still having fun
Soon enough the fun will end
Now you went and lost all your friends
I hope it all was worth all you have lost
And I know your stepping out of line
And I know I cannot help
But I'm here when you get back in line
I won't lose my faith in you
Now I see you running
