

Queen Adreena, Black Spring Rising

Black spring rising

She falls

By the way a black rainbow wispering my name (yes, that's how it's spelt)

By the way I changed the locks and I'm on a plane

By the way I turn to dust washed away by rain

By the way I burned your books and I changed my name

I took his hand it begins to snow

Refracted light of a black rainbow

I crossed the desert but these seeds were sown

There's no place like home

I've got to get out

Abort on the rent

I've got to get out

Said game over

By the way black narcissus on her bed of nails

By the way I never got it redirect the mail

By the way arrived to late already setting sail
