

Quietdrive, Starbright

come home to your place i've got a little while til i have to leave you know there's been times where i couldn't lie to your face but right now i'm looking at you through the window of your soul i know those little dark holes are beautiful but i i hear the words i should be saying i just wish that you could know i just think that you should know that your star is so bright i can see your core and you light up my life so i can see more i don't care if you're lost or you're scared or you never ever wanna be friends

there's a small step outside your place i've got a little wine so i can taste all the bitter sweet times that i have failed again but its not to late to repair myself from the damage done since i've been gone and i know i see the snow it starts to fall down i just think that i should go because your star is so bright i can see your core

and you light up my life so i can see more
i don't care if you're lost or you're scared or you never ever
wanna be friends

please be lonely please be lonely without me

because your star is so bright i can see your core
and you light up my life so i can see more i don't care if i get lost and don't see you again