

Rearview Mirror, Dead Air

Fixated on the past, the heroes all dissolved.
You know they already carved your name upon the stone.
Now turn away and crack the timing it is perfect.
'Cause no one here regrets and no one ever mourning.
No one wants to do it again.
Take it away, just take it at?Hey, I'll watch you hang from the rafters,
and I'll watch you from beneath.
'Cause today the world means nothing.
Just hang and try not to think?Do you feel the blood and sweat pouring down over your face now?
And all the struggle you put forth,
but still can't free your own mouth.
And who cares if you don't see the moonlight or the sun.
Buried deep an empty soul.
Was for the money not the love?Hey, I'll watch you hang from the rafters,
and I'll watch you from beneath.
'Cause today the world means nothing.
Just hang and try not to think?Don't run the wrong is inside you and all the struggle that you put forth.
Still nothing to make us feel better,
'cause it's too late the world has crumbled?Hey, I'll watch you hang from the rafters,
and I'll watch you from beneath.
'Cause today the world means nothing.
Just hang and try not to think.
'Cause today the world has crumbled and the piece,
the pieces and the dust will never hide your soul,
will never hide your soul, so don't try.
