

Rebecca Lavelle, The Siren's Song

THE SIREN'S SONG

In the shadow, of the moment
Is the truth, of light and dark
Try to touch
What lies between them
But you'll never leave a mark

In the stillness, In the silence
When it's finished, when it's gone
Something echoes, something whispers
Tries to speak when you're alone

You can hold
The darkness from you
If the will
Is very strong
But that whisper
Always haunts you
Cannot change that Sirens song

In the daylight, It seems simple
Simple choices, black and white
But it's hard, to face the shadow
That's the fear that walks the night

You can hold
That darkness from you
If the will
Is very strong
But that whisper
Always haunts you
Cannot change that Sirens song

Lonely people