

Reverend Horton Heat, Lonesome Man

I'm a lonesome man
no one understands
I walk a lonesome road
I carry one light load

I've hitched the endless line holding everything that's mine but I'd own the world you see if she believed in me

I'd everything that a man could want I'd be so proud
she's the kind of woman
a man would love to flaunt

but I'm a lonesome man made my living with my hands I lost my job you see and she walked out on me

I'd everything that a man could want
I'd be so proud

no one understands
I'd own the world you see if she'd believe in me
