

Rez Band, Road

It swallowed me alive,
I thought that I had died,
He flashed a winning smile and I was shattered,
No matter what he did, I never called his bid,
He took me in his arms, that's all that mattered.

Always the same,
Different faces, different names,
It doesn't change,
Just looking for someone to blame.

Nobody fashions rules for parasites and fools,
I took the hand that offered me disaster,
But who can you believe when all they do is leave, and every tongue just seems to wag a little fast

Always the same,
Different faces, different names,
It doesn't change,
Just looking for someone to blame.

I've been a traveller with joy and sorrow,
A rooster crows,
I am the builder of this road.

Always the same,
Different faces, different names,
It doesn't change,
Just looking for someone to blame,
Always the same,
Different faces, different names,
It doesn't change,
Just looking for someone to blame.
