

Richard Marx, Too early to be over

With another day another life slips away And floats above the crowd You can only stay ahead of time