Rilo Kiley, Wires And Waves

there are twelve hours there's a day between us and you called to say you're sorry in your own way there are oceans and waves and wires between us and you called to say you're getting older and sometimes planes they smash up in the sky and sometimes lonely hearts they just get lonelier how did you survive all those fires and floods? how did you survive your insufferable friends? it was the plow that broke the western plains and its just my heart gets rejected by my veins and sometimes planes they smash up in the sky and sometimes lonely hearts they just get lonelier and sometimes planes they smash up in the sky and sometimes lonely hearts they just get lonelier