

Robyn, Eclipse

There's an eclipse in your eye where I used to shine Every secret untold is a planet aligned Don't need prophets or preachers to make sense of the signs When the buried and hidden can be seen by the blind

You're right
Some words are just unspoken
So right
Then it all just falls apart

The day I break your heart

I caught my reflection in the corner of your eye You said "Don't even ask the question, and I won't tell the lie"; Where there's no accusation there's no need for denial And if you hadn't heard that whisper there'd be no tear to wipe from your eye

You're right
Some words are best unspoken
So right
Then it all just falls apart

The day I break your heart

Never took no advice
Not the foolish, not the wise
All the truth that I needed was right there in your smile Every prophecy written of what's going to be All beginnings and endings, they're about you and me

You're right
Some words are best unspoken
So right
Until it all just falls apart
You're right
Some words are best unspoken
So right
Then it all just falls apart

The day I break your heart