

Roger Daltrey, Everything A Heart Could Ever Want

She comes home late
And I've waited long
Then she sings me lines
From the songs I used to sing
When I was young

Then I feel alright
'Cause she's that kind of girl
A woman-child,
A free young spirit
In a jaded world

And she knows me
Shows me
Lets me see

She's everything a heart could ever want (Willow)
When I call her name (Willow)
Will she still hear me when
She's everything a heart could ever want (Willow)
When she looks at me (Willow)
Her eyes just see it all

She always puts me right
Yep, when I turn up wrong
She never walks away
Her smile tells me
I'm goin' on and on and on

It gets real damn hard
Ooh to let your children grow
And when you make mistakes
It's the time you've gotta let 'em
Know you know you know

I wanna know her
Show her
I wanna let her see

She's everything a heart could ever want (Willow)
When I call her name (Willow)
Will she still hear me when
She's everything a heart could ever want (Willow)
When she looks at me (Willow)
Her eyes just see it all
'Cause she's everything a heart could ever want (Willow)
She's sometimes strange (Willow)
So please, please, please don't change

It ain't an easy thing
To let a young bird fly
And when they spread their wings
For the very first time
You just wanna die

Everything a heart could ever want
I know she's everything a heart could ever want
Ooh she's everything a heart could ever want
Ooohhh
