

Ron Sexsmith, Cold Hearted Wind

Some morning you may find yourself alone
And there'll be no warning
Should the wind of change start blowin

Cold hearted wind
Is blowin in the face of love
But Ill take it to a place I know
Where the cold hearted wind dont go

Been brewin ever since the world began
It could mean the ruination
Of your best laid plans

Cold hearted wind
Is moving on from every side
Dividing all goodwill has tried
To mend and to unite

You wonder if its gone for good
As I ponder that unlikelihood
Oh, if only wishing could
Just keep us from harms way always

But I feel it like a train rollin down the track
As it calls for you
To entertain these thoughts so black

Cold blooded storm
May turn the warmest heart to stone
And leave a trail of toppled hopes and dreams
Where the cold hearted wind has blown

Cold hearted wind
Is blowin in the face of love
But Ill take you to a place I know
Where the cold hearted wind dont go
